If You Have An Injury Claim, Get Legal Help Promptly

If you've been in an accident and intend to make a claim, there are several reasons why you must consult an attorney promptly.

One reason is there are time limits ("statutes of limitations") for making claims. If you wait too long and the statute of limitations passes, you will be prevented from bringing your claim.

Courts strictly follow statutes of limitations. In one case, a woman hurt in a car accident made a claim one day after the statute of limitations passed. Even though this was a minor violation, a court dismissed her claim and she could not

No Recovery, No Fee: How Accident Victims Are Charged

Many accident victims don't make a claim because they think they can't afford the legal fees. It's important to remember that all personal injury claims and worker's compensation claims are handled on a contingent fee. This means the legal fee is paid out of the recovery. If there's no recovery, there's no legal fee.

Contingent legal fees are great because they allow any accident and work injury victim with a good case to get a lawyer's help. Without contingent fees, it would be hard for most accident victims to make a claim, especially with insurance companies and their teams of lawyers and adjusters on the other side working to lower accident payouts.

The "no recovery, no fee" method benefits accident victims by making it easy for them to get a lawyer's help when making a claim to an insurance company. This helps even the playing field and results in much higher payments to accident victims. It also shows the lawyer's strong commitment since the lawyer gets paid only if the client recovers money.

Thanks to contingent fees, you can get the help of a qualified lawyer after an accident, even if you think you couldn't otherwise afford to hire one.

Your Right To Workers' Compensation Benefits

On the job injuries are common. If you have an injury or illness due to your job, you may be entitled to receive money under workers' compensation laws. The injury may result from a single act, such as an accident, or it may result from being constantly exposed to activities or substances at work.

Ohio workers' compensation laws help make sure that injured workers have enough money to take care of themselves and their families while they are out of work. They also help injured workers get well so they can return to work. Almost all businesses are subject to workers' compensation laws.

recover money for her injuries.

Another reason why you should seek legal help immediately is that delay can hurt your case. As time passes, it becomes harder to gather evidence and to find and interview witnesses, who may move or forget the details of your accident.

Since waiting can cause your accident claim to be dismissed or lower your recovery, seek legal help as soon as possible after an accident or work injury.
